STUDENT ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA

CARES ACT STUDENT ELIGIBILITY

The maximum estimated total number of Loyola students eligible to participate in programs under Section 484 in Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, and thus eligible to receive Emergency Financial Aid Grants to students under Section 18004(a)(1) of the CARES Act was 4,973. This estimate is based on the number of students who meet the following eligibility requirements:

- Was enrolled at Loyola on March 13, 2020 as a full-time or part-time undergraduate or graduate student;
- Is eligible for federal financial aid (this will be determined by either having been approved through the 2019-2020 or 2020-2021 FAFSA process or if you have not completed a FAFSA form, completion of an attestation of eligibility of Title IV criteria as per rule making by the Department of Education;
- Experienced a financial hardship as a result of the disruption of education due to the coronavirus for expenses included but not limited to: food, housing, course materials, technology, health care, and child-care expenses; and
- Completes the Loyola certification form via Qualtrics.

RATIONALE FOR DISBURSEMENTS AND TOTAL STUDENT AWARDS MADE

Loyola is committed to providing grants to all eligible students who complete the certification process by the deadlines set and communicated to students by the Stimulus Response Group and to the greatest extent possible with the CARES Act funds available. The Stimulus Response Group is comprised of representatives from financial aid, advancement, financial services and external affairs/government and community relations.

Our process for determining amounts of grants was based on a variety of factors, including financial need, overall applicant pool, availability of funds and the desire to provide some financial amount to all those who completed the certification process. We set up online forms to request information necessary to determine eligibility as per the criteria listed above. We then set thresholds for maximum amounts we could provide per student based on Pell eligibility and residential status (residential student or commuter/off-campus student). We also provided some funding for graduate students based on their enrollment status (full-time or part-time). We maximized the amount that we could provide to each of these groups based upon the overall applicant pool of eligible students.

All information was shared with students via email and also outlined on the Loyola HEERF website. For additional information on the content of emails sent to students can be provided upon request please see Appendix I, Appendix II and Appendix III.

CRRSAA STUDENT ELIGIBILITY

The maximum estimated total number of Loyola students eligible to receive Emergency Financial Aid Grants to students under Section 314(a)(1) of the CRRSAA was 2,555. This estimate is based on the number of students who meet the eligibility requirements:

To support as many undergraduate and graduate students as possible, Loyola will award automatic grants of up to $750 based on the following eligibility criteria:

- Must have a 2020-21 FAFSA or CSS Profile on file as of February 8, 2021;
- Must be enrolled at least-part time as of February 8, 2021;
- Must be a Loyola degree-seeking undergraduate or graduate student;
- Must be a U.S. citizen or eligible non-citizen as verified by the FAFSA; and
- Must have need not exceeding the average cost of attendance as measured by the FAFSA or CSS Profile.

Grant amounts were disbursed on a sliding scale that reduced the amount granted per student as the estimated family contribution amount increased. Students may use the funds for any component of their cost of attendance or emergency costs due to coronavirus such as tuition, food, housing, health care (including mental), and childcare.

Additional consideration was given to students who previously completed the COVID-19 Special Circumstances Appeal Form available thru the Office of Financial Aid website but who had not yet received assistance through that process because institutional funds supporting these appeals had been completely expended.

Students who met the eligibility criteria as determined by the office of financial aid, were notified via email that they would be receiving a grant and payments were made by check and sent to the permanent/home address on record in WebAdvisor; or, if the student has elected to receive “Refund, Reimbursement and Payment Deposits” via direct deposit then they will be processed as an ACH bank transfer.

In order to ensure the timely delivery of grant disbursements, any updates to address information and/or banking information must be completed, and banking information must show as ‘verified’ in WebAdvisor by Friday, April 16, 2021. Any updates to information after this date cannot be guaranteed to be applied prior to the processing of the student’s grant disbursement. More information on how to confirm or update this information can be accessed via the links below:

RATIONALE FOR DISBURSEMENTS AND TOTAL STUDENT AWARDS MADE

Loyola is committed to providing grants to all eligible students who met the eligibility criteria outlined above by the deadlines set and communicated to students by the Stimulus Response Group and to the greatest extent possible with the CRRSAA funds available. The Stimulus Response Group is comprised of representatives from financial aid, advancement, financial services and external affairs/government and community relations.

Our process for determining amounts of grants was based on a student’s eligibility as outlined in the criteria above. Upon review of the FAFSA or CSS Profile information, Loyola used a student’s estimated family contribution (EFC) as the basis for determining the amount disbursed to each eligible student, respectively.

In order to provide the greatest amount to those who demonstrated ‘exceptional need’ Loyola provided grant disbursements of the highest amount to those who are eligible for the Pell Grant Program. Subsequent ranges of EFCs were set which then provided a structure for the disbursement of the remaining grant funds on a sliding scale such that the higher the EFC, the less the grant. Additionally, CRRSAA funding was used to provide grants of $750 per student for those who applied to Financial Aid to appeal for additional support due to COVID-19 specific circumstances. These student’s appeals were vetted by Financial Aid and determined to be valid, however at the time they were received, there were no remaining institutional funds to provide them with financial assistance.

Subsequent guidance from the Department of Education confirmed that student eligibility was expanded to include non-citizen students. With the remaining funds after the initial processing of student grants for those with confirmed citizenship status, non-citizen students were provided grants at 51% of the amounts as defined by their EFC range.

All grant disbursements under CRRSAA funding were processed in batches starting on April 19, 2021 and completed by May 31, 2021. The batches were prioritized so that those with the greatest demonstrated need were processed alphabetically. As payments were processed, students were notified that their disbursements were processed and the format (direct deposit or check) of the disbursement. If an eligible student did not receive their disbursement by May 31, 2021 they should email heerf@loyola.edu.

All information was shared with students via email and also outlined on the Loyola HEERF website. For additional information on the content of emails sent to eligible students please see Appendix IV and Appendix V. As payments were processed, students were notified by email that the direct deposit or check had been processed.

ARP ACT STUDENT ELIGIBILITY

The maximum estimated total number of Loyola students eligible to receive Emergency Financial Aid Grants to students under Section 314(a)(1) of the ARPA is 2,797. This estimate is based on the number of students who meet the eligibility requirements outlined below. To support as many undergraduate and graduate students as possible, Loyola will award automatic grants based on the following eligibility criteria. Students must meet all of these criteria in order to receive a grant.

- Must have a 2021-2022 FAFSA or CSS Profile on file as of October 21, 2021;
- Must be enrolled at least-part time as of October 21, 2021;
- Must be a Loyola degree-seeking undergraduate or graduate student; and
- Must have an EFC of $69,999 or less.

Those students who meet the above criteria automatically receive a grant in the range of $2,150 to $250 for undergraduate students and $300 to $150 for graduate students. Grant amounts were disbursed on a sliding scale that reduced the amount granted per student as the estimated family contribution amount increased to the maximum eligible EFC of $69,999 and enrollment status (full-time or part-time).

Students may use the funds for any component of their cost of attendance or emergency costs due to coronavirus such as tuition, food, housing, health care (including mental), and childcare.

Students did not need to apply for these funds. Students who met the eligibility criteria as determined by the office of financial aid, were notified via email that they would be receiving a grant and payments would be made by check and sent to the permanent/home address on record in WebAdvisor [OR] if the student has elected to receive "Refund, Reimbursement and Payment Deposits" via direct deposit then they will be processed as an ACH bank transfer. Eligible students received an email once the payment has been processed confirming the payment format (bank transfer or physical check), the amount of the grant, and the processing date.

ARPA Grant Disbursement Schedule

Grant disbursements were processed in batches prioritizing those with greatest demonstrated need (lowest EFCs in alphabetical order) starting on Thursday, December 16, 2021. All disbursements were processed no later than February 1, 2022. If an eligible student did not receive their disbursement by February 28, 2022, they should email heerf@loyola.edu.

Additionally, in order to confirm our intention to draw on the ARPA funds allocated to Loyola, the University was required to draw down at least $1 within 90 days of the allocation of the funds. We did make one draw down of $500 which was provided to a Pell eligible student who exhibited the greatest need as determined by the estimated family contribution in their 2021-2022 FAFSA and Profile records. The student has been Pell eligible since their first year at Loyola with no hiatus history and this amount was deducted from the grant processed in December of 2021 such that the total that the student will receive in HEERF funds is in line with the criteria noted above.
